

BUCKS CO. TURNS OUT GOODS VALUED AT $23,586,800

Results in Study for 1932
Made Public by Secretary of Internal Affairs

SHOWS A BIG DECREASE

229 Industrial Establishments
Gave Employment To 9,171 People

HARRISBURG, July 28.—Bucks County, with 74 different kinds of industry, turned out products in 1932 with a value of $23,586,800 according to compilations made by the Bureau of Statistics of the Pennsylvania Department of Internal Affairs. Results of the study were made public today by Secretary of Internal Affairs Philip H. Dewey who declared that decreased prices in commodities as well as decreased operations in various plants were responsible for the decrease in production valuation under 1931 when products were valued at $36,499,200.

Reports filed with the Department of Internal Affairs for 1932 show that there were 229 industrial establishments in Bucks County which were operated by 84 individuals, 31 partnerships and 114 corporations. The plants last year gave employment to 9,171 persons including 8,249 wage earners and 922 salaried workers. Among the wage earners were 7,522 white Americans, 78 colored Americans and 649 foreigners. There were 5,048 male wage workers and 3,201 female wage employees who were paid $7,763,300. Male wage workers during the year received $4,282,800 while female wage employees were paid $1,480,500. Salaried workers last year received $1,821,100, a sum which made the industrial payroll in the county total $7,584,400.

In 1931 Bucks County had 244 industrial plants employing 9,722 wage earners and 1,125 salaried workers, a total of 10,847 persons. Wage earners in that year included 8,857 white Americans, 122 colored Americans and 743 foreigners. There were 6,390 male wage workers and 3,332 female wage employees who received compensation amounting to $9,665,800. Male wage earners in 1931 were paid $7,766,300 while females received $1,899,500. Salaried workers during the year were paid $2,609,100 and the combined wages and salaries amounted to $12,274,900.

Notwithstanding that Textiles and Textile Products make up a big part of Bucks County's production valuation annually, it was other classes of industry which led in the decreased total of production valuation and wages paid in 1932 when compared with the preceding year. The Miscellaneous industrial class which includes aircraft, photographic apparatus, laundry work, dental supplies and several other items dropped in production valuation from $5,516,200 in 1931 to $1,560,400 in 1932, a decrease of $3,955,800. This decrease was followed by textiles with a production loss of $3,363,800. In 1932 textiles were valued at $8,505,600 while in the preceding year the value totaled $11,869,400. In the Miscellaneous class the employees in 1931 totaled 1,536 and wages amounted to $2,540,600. In 1932 employees in the Miscellaneous class dropped to 561, a loss of 975, and wages fell to $358,500, a decrease under 1931 of $2,182,100.

In the textile industry in 1932 there were 4,387 wage earners as compared with 4,441 in 1931, the loss in employees last year being but 54. Wage earners in textile plants in Bucks County in 1932 were paid $2,792,800 while in 1931, with the production valuation $3,363,800 higher, the wages totaled $3,340,000, the loss last year amounting to $547,200.

A summary, according to records of the Department of Internal Affairs, shows that wage employees in all classes of industry in the county decreased 1,473 in 1932 and that 975 of these were dropped through decreased production in the Miscellaneous class while the textile industry lost only 54 wage earners. Under the class of Metals and Metal Products, employees dropped from 710 in 1931 to 569 in 1932, a loss of 150. Likewise, the metal industry contributed to the total production decrease in the county. Metals and Metal Products in 1932 having been valued at $1,507,000 as compared with $3,418,700 in 1931, a decrease last year of $1,911,700. Wages in that class of industry dropped from $746,100 in 1931 to $420,900 in 1932.

Chemicals and Allied Products held up well under the strain last year and Secretary Dewey's report shows that these items had a value of $4,374,200 in 1932 as compared with $4,937,500 in 1931. Clay, Glass and Stone Products last year were valued at $378,900 while in 1931 the value was $849,000. Food and Kindred Products last year were worth $1,256,900 as compared with $1,698,100 in the preceding year. In 1932 Leather and Rubber Goods had a value of $1,257,700 and in 1931 the value reached $2,061,300. Lumber and its Remanufacture in 1932, as a class, was valued at $308,500 while in 1931 the value was $418,200. Paper and Printing Industries showed a slight gain in 1932 when products were valued at Watertown, Mass., July 28.—Bearing out the historical confession today of Mrs. Ruth E. Compton, 30, wife of a state engineer, that she shot and killed her mother, Mrs. Mabel A. Grogan, 59, searchers found the body of the victim after a hunt of several hours in the woods between East Orange and Northfield, they reported to police.

MAY NAME COUZENS

Washington, D. C., July 28.—The return of Senator James Couzens, Detroit multi-millionaire, from his service at the London Economic Conference, today incited reports of his possible appointment as non-partisan Secretary of the Treasury to succeed the ailing William H. Woodin. Appointment of Couzens as Woodin's successor, whenever the latter retires, will be urged upon President Roosevelt by several Congressional leaders, particularly from the group of Independent Republicans who voted for the Democratic nominee last November. His selection, however, was certain to provoke bitter opposition from the regular patronage-seeking Democratic chieftains, who have been complaining for months about the paucity of jobs.

Woodin has been ill for the past six weeks. He was expected to confer with President Roosevelt at Hyde Park some time next week when the President goes to his old home for a short rest. It may be this conference will produce his resignation.

Friends of Couzens, who will urge his appointment, will rely upon the Senator's vast knowledge of official affairs and the President's apparent confidence in his ability. On the other hand, Democratic leaders will want the treasury post to go to a loyal Democrat. As one Democrat said: "We won't stand for Couzens no matter how much we admire his ability. The Secretary of the Treasury must be able to raise campaign funds, and Jim Couzens, while he might contribute a fortune, won't raise us one cent and anyway, we are sore now because there are too many Republicans in high places and we can't get jobs for our own fellows."

BALDWIN REPLIES TO PINCHOT ATTACK ON CAR

Auditor General Says That It
Would Be Economy To Buy New One

$1300 ALLOWED OLD CAR

HARRISBURG, July 28.—Auditor General Frank E. Baldwin was back today with a report on Governor Pinchot's announced refusal to approve a requisition for an official automobile costing $4375.

Baldwin pointed out the Governor's figure included an allowance of $1300 for the old car and asserted the proposed charges would be economical when compared with the operating cost of the car he is now driving. He lampooned the Governor for the "very special gold stripe job in which you made your spectacular trip to the capitol, the day you were inaugurated" at a cost of $2767.20 to the taxpayers.

Baldwin said the "circus wagon" was ordered by the Governor weeks before he had authority and claimed the automobile purchases within a few hundred dollars of the figure objected to have been approved since the $2500 limit was proclaimed.

BUCKS COUNTY RESIDENT DESIGNED "NIRA" EAGLE

Charles T. Coiner, Mechanicsville, Artist Whose Design Was Accepted

MANY OTHERS REJECTED

The "Recovery Eagle" was born in mid-air in an airplane flying between Philadelphia and Washington.

The "Recovery Eagle" is the symbolic representation by Charles Coiner, a Bucks artist, of the national co-operative spirit for recovery. It is the central theme in the Badge of Honor, designed by Mr. Coiner, and to be given to industries co-operating with the National Recovery Administration.

In one claw the eagle grasps a cog, symbolic of labor's place in this machine age and the other holds shafts of lightning, representing the modern motivating power of electricity.

After 50 different designs had been submitted to the National Recovery Administration and turned down, Mr. Coiner, who is head of the art department at the N. W. Ayer & Co., was called to Washington. Boarding an airplane he flew to the Capital and an hour after he had arrived there had translated to paper the design which has been accepted.

Mr. Coiner, who is 35, was born in Santa Barbara, California, and located in Philadelphia about nine years ago.

Mr. Coiner bought the High Farm, on the Durham Road, Mechanicsville, about a year ago and has greatly improved it since that time. It was once known as the old "Gillingham Mansion."

Recently he was commissioned by the Pennsylvania Museum to plan an exhibition of the most recent developments in American design. Mr. Coiner in addition to his work as a commercial artist is known as a painter of landscapes. He has exhibited in the Pennsylvania Museum, Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, the Chicago Art Institute and the Cincinnati Museum. Recently one of his paintings was purchased for the Lamberth Collection in New York.

Mr. Coiner's opinion of his National Recovery "Badge of Honor" is that it represents a departure from the traditional and has about it certain modernistic tendencies which he feels are significant in that government pieces in the past have adhered largely to tradition.

General Hugh S. Johnson, head of the "Nira," is said to refer to the design as "my blue hawk."

Pickets Ordered To Cease Patrol of A Private Home

The residence and business of A. Arcolesse, Wood street, was picketed this morning by men and girls said to be strikers at the Blue Moon Hosiery mill, Croydon.

Ten men and two girls walked the pavement in front of the Arcolesse place with arm bands upon their arms and continued their picketing for about 15 minutes or until Chief of Police Linford J. Jones arrived upon the scene.

Chief Jones ordered the pickets to leave or be placed under arrest. They left.

Mrs. Arcolesse stated that this morning about 8.30 three persons arrived and asked if her son, Victor, had gone to work at the Blue Moon plant. They were informed that he had, after being sent for by the owner of the mill.

According to Mrs. Arcolesse the trio told her that the place would be picketed and her business disgraced.

HULMEVILLE BLANKS PARKLAND NINE; 6 TO 0

"Ike" Watson, Brilliant Southpaw, Allows Only One Hit

WAS IN SUPERB FORM

Lower Bucks County League

Results of last night's games: HULMEVILLE, 6; PARKLAND, 0. ODD FELLOWS, 2; BRISTOL, 0. HIBERNIANS, 9; LANGHORNE, 0 (Forfeit).

"Ike" Watson, brilliant southpaw hurler of the Hulmeville A. A. team narrowly missed the mythical Hall of Fame last night on the Hulmeville field when he blanked the Parkland A. A. team with one hit. Final score was 6-0.

Watson was in superb form and for six and two-third innings set down the Parkies without a hit. With two gone in the final session, Gotwalds connected for a one-bagger which spoiled the Hulmeville twirler of a no-run, no-hit game. Watson fanned seven and passed four. No Parkland batter reached third base and only one got as far as second.

The victory was the seventh straight for Hulmeville and their third consecutive shut-out win. They are still in first place in the league standing.

Hulmeville greeted Holland with two tallies in the first when Leigh singled, Watson also hit safely and Snackhouse followed with a double. In the third, Rockhill's pass, Bilger's hit, Stackhouse's safely and a double by Harrison added three more tallies. In the fourth another Hulmeville run dented the plate when Mende doubled to left center, went to third on Haefner's fly to center and scored on Rockhill's long skier to the same section. Davis starred for the losers with four nice catches in centerfield.

The Odd Fellows kept in the running for the second half pennant by beating Bristol A. A., 2-0, on the Emille field. It was the second consecutive shut-out victory for the Oddies.

Turner Ashby did the whitewashing to the A. A. clan and in doing it allowed the losers but four hits. "Milt" Jones, the losing twirler pitched steadily and gave up but five hits.

NAME REPRESENTATIVES, WHEAT CONTROL BOARD

Total of 278 Farmers Attend
The Ten Meetings Held
Throughout County

PROGRAM IS EXPLAINED

For the purpose of selecting representatives for the preliminary county wheat control board, a total number of 278 Bucks County farmers throughout yesterday attended the 10 meetings conducted at strategic points in the county. The board, it is planned, is to co-operate with the agriculture adjustment administration from Washington, D. C. Meetings were under direction of the Federal Wheat Production Control Association.

Sessions were held last evening at Eddington, Milford Square, Revere, and Richboro; while in the morning sessions were at Buckingham, Chalfont, and Hagersville; and during the afternoon farmers met at Edgewood, Plumsteadville, and Pleasant Valley.

In addition to setting up their organization, the farmers heard the wheat program explained, being told of the contracts arranged between the wheat growers and the government, the grower agreeing to reduce his wheat acreage according to allotments set down by the government. The plan is optional with the farmers. Growers signing the wheat agreement will have the wheat processing tax, which is set on wheat used for human food, returned to them.

The representatives chosen at the meetings are: Eddington, Joseph P. Canby, Hulmeville; Buckingham, Frank Rice, Mechanicsville; Chalfont, Levi Moyer, Chalfont; Hagersville, Amos Bryan, Perkassie; Edgewood, Ezra Miller, Newtown; Plumsteadville, Oliver Landis, Perkassie; Pleasant Valley, Erwin Dieterly, Springtown; Richboro, Russell Edwards, Ivyland; Revere, Ernest Poellner, Ottsville; Milford Square, Allen Schantz, Quakertown.

County farm agent William F. Greenawalt spoke at the Buckingham, Edgewood and Richboro sessions; while the speaker at Eddington was Charles K. Halliwell, of the Pennsylvania State Agriculture College. M. M. Rahm, county agent of Carbon County, addressed farmers at Hagersville, Pleasant Valley and Milford Square; while L. C. Madison, of State College, was the speaker at Chalfont, Plumsteadville, and Revere.

Mr. Halliwell at Eddington pointed out that 600,000 bushels of wheat yearly is the average production in Bucks County, and said this should be reduced about 20 per cent.

The representatives from each of the 19 sections will gather at the Bucks County Administration Building, Doylestown, tonight at 8.30, to complete their organization. Officers will be chosen at that time.

Rawlston Spitts to Be Charged With Involuntary Manslaughter

ONLY ONE BULLET FIRED

Picked Blackberries All The Afternoon, Then Went Hunting

FALLSINGTON, July 28.—Rawlston Spitts, 34, will appear today charged with involuntary manslaughter as the result of an alleged accidental shooting of Charles Wright, 39, who was fatally wounded late yesterday.

Spitts and Wright were hunting for groundhogs on the farm of Thomas Weiss, Lincoln Highway about a half mile beyond Lincoln Pike.

The bullet which killed Wright was fired by Spitts and entered the base of the skull near the left ear and took an upward course through the head.

Following his explanation of the shooting to Morrisville State Police, Spitts was released on his own recognizance on authorization of Bucks County District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn for appearance today. With the death of Wright, authorities say, he will be charged with involuntary manslaughter.

Spitts told Troopers Brace and Smith, who investigated the shooting, that after separating from Wright on the Weiss farm, he noticed a patch of brown in some tall weeds, and believing it to be a groundhog, fired a single shot, which struck his companion.

According to Spitts, he and Wright, who is a painter and paperhanger, had no work yesterday and had spent the day up to 4 o'clock picking blackberries. Then they decided to go hunting for groundhogs, each taking a .22 calibre rifle.

At about 6.15, he related, they separated and he walked about a half mile away from where he left Wright. After turning back, he said, he saw the patch of brown moving in some weeds about 18 inches high and fired the fatal shot.

As the victim, who was either kneeling or crawling on the ground, rolled over, Spitts said, he saw his blue shirt. Running to the side of Wright and finding him unconscious, Spitts believed he was dead and hastened to the Weiss farmhouse to report what had happened. George Woodward, who lives nearby, was visiting at the farm, and he rushed Wright to the hospital. The victim was admitted to the institution at 7 o'clock and died shortly before 9.30.

Spitts went to the home of Constable Elwood Fritz, here, and reported the shooting. The latter notified Morrisville State Police and Spitts was taken to the barracks for questioning.

Trooper Smith was detailed to the hospital to get a statement from Wright if he regained consciousness, but when District Attorney Eastburn permitted Spitts' release he was recalled.

According to neighbors the two men, both of whom were single, had been close friends, and it was generally assumed that the shooting was accidental.

DARING QUEEN

Now who can deny that the world has gone liberal? Queen Mary, of England, the last Bulwark of Victorianism, has appeared at a garden party in a gown which did not reach the ground by seven inches. This is a note for the historians when they come to chronicle the transition from the conservative age to the liberal age.

Viewed with alarm by the textile industry is this act of Queen Mary. What if the world follows her example and the formal, semi-formal and afternoon gowns now brushing the grass are shortened by seven inches? It would mean a curtailment of textile production by millions of yards and of textile employment by thousands of workers.

Fortunately Queen Mary has not been setting the fashion, except at court where the long train is still compulsory. When she was wearing them long her sisters were wearing them short, and now that she is taking them up the fashion for the commoners is long, if not longer.

And yet she has created an economic threat which the world economic conference should have cautioned against. Did not the ostrich industry go out when ostrich plumes went out? Did not the sheep go to the butcher's when silk and cotton replaced wool? And look what happened to the poor little silk worm when the industrial research engineer developed rayon.

A queen cannot be too careful in such important matters of state as altering the hem of a skirt.

MORALITY IS RELATIVE

If a canvass of theatergoers were made 999 out of every 1000 would say that he is opposed to immoral and obscene plays, but no two out of 1000 would agree on what constitutes an immoral and obscene play. Most people are moral except to those whose definition for morality is a mere more restrictive.

Not infrequently modern America is accused of drinking the dregs of immorality. And yet, a critic of the British theater says that some of the plays which have so shocked some Americans are considered dull by the English theatergoer. In the eyes of the European the people of the United States are a nation of puritans. It seems that the American people are considered naughty only by their compatriots.

Time changes the lens of the glasses of immorality. Twenty years ago the plays of Ibsen caused more blushes than any of the New York plays now being shadowed by the Purity League, but today those same plays of Ibsen are presented by college and high school dramatic clubs under faculty direction. Samuel Pepys in the early seventeenth century burned his French novels after reading them and those same novels today grace the best American homes. The modern two-piece bathing suit would have thrown its fair wearer into jail a decade ago but today it is prescribed by the beach censors.

Just as no two generations will draw the line between morality and immorality at the same place, so will no two people of the same generation call the one moral and the other immoral. Each must choose the plays he will attend just as he must select his own friends and associates.

Remember when a fellow had the nerve to ask the boss for a raise?

SYNOPSIS

Leni Luneska, beautiful motion picture star, is embarrassed at the premiere of her latest picture when her husband, Karl Kruger, whom she thought in prison, arrives and threatens to reveal his identity unless she talks with him. Lucky Cavanaugh, a gambler, prevents Kruger from making a scene and has him placed in a private office to await Leni after the show. In the next office, thieves are burglarizing the safe. Leni goes to Kruger. He demands recognition as her husband. She refuses but he says he will wait for her to reconsider. Cavanaugh, fascinated by Leni's beauty, follows her into the box. Finding her in tears he tries to comfort her and Leni is strangely strengthened by his hand-clasp. He takes her out for a walk in the park. Forced to confide in someone, she relates her past life: slaying in a Vienna factory... marriage to Kruger when only fourteen... beatings... Kruger's arrest... America... and her romantic rise to stardom. Unable to resist, Cavanaugh takes Leni in his arms and, in an unguarded moment, she allows him to kiss her. Suddenly regaining her composure, she asks him to take her back and forget about it. Cavanaugh goes to Kruger and insists that he leave, but the latter is defiant. A fight ensues and Kruger draws a revolver. Meanwhile, the burglars are waiting for the gunfire of the battle scene on the screen inside to drown the noise of dynamiting the safe. They are much concerned over Kruger's proximity...

CHAPTER NINE

All of them became silent again while the nervous clicking of the watch bespoke the seconds bringing the screen play to its deafening climax of roaring battle. Four thousand persons—most of them in evening clothes—sat in plush seats and experienced the carbon-copy emotions of real warfare. Behind the ramparts of muddy trenches a division of French infantry watched the dawn in Flanders. A heavy mist billowed before the eyes, filling folds and hollows of mysterious landscape. Vaguely the twin spires of the cathedral in the distance began to take form. The men in battle-stained uniforms clutched their rifles and peered into the gray fog as they awaited the zero hour of death. Behind their backs handsome officers in natty uniforms walked up and down and glanced nervously at strap watches. It was the hush before the storm.

The figure of a poet crept out of a dug-out—a strangely fragile and delicate form to be engaged in the grim business of war. For a moment the audience thinks it is a boy of ten or twelve, but the audience is wrong. The camera angle is shifted and it is seen that Leni Luneska has reached the front.

She has deceived the entire Allied army into believing that she is a soldier of France. It is remarkable, even incredible yet it unfolds before the eye and is gladly believed.

Leni has come to die with her sweetheart. He is the soldier of the handsome profile and his uniform is the best fit in the regiment.

A minor miracle happens. It develops that the commander is the scout leader who made her life very miserable in the peaceful days before the war. Her gorgeous beauty does not deceive him into believing she is a poet. His eyes light upon her and immediately he knows that she is not one of his men. He recognizes her. The zero hour is forgotten as his Gallic blood becomes molten with passion. War is war and brooks no time for petty formalities between man and woman. Before she can scream to her sweetheart she is in the officer's grasp and on the way to a convenient dug-out.

He raised the revolver in his clutching hand to the level of Lucky Cavanaugh's breast.

Leni is rescued at the crucial moment by General Von Hindenburg who liberates upon the French army the concentrated fury of ten thousand tons of shrapnel and dynamite.

Vast geysers of dust spring up and settle slowly to earth. It is an inferno of mighty concussion flinging debris through the smoke-laden universe. Roar after roar shakes the heavens, shot through with the shrill scream of flying shells. The walls of the theater tremble. Conversation is impossible. It is worse than a boiler factory. It lasts for three entire minutes. It is epic. The picture proceeded.

In her box, Leni watched and listened. The battle roar was dying down and the audience, carried away by emotion was contributing a machine-gun rattle of applause. This was success. They liked it. Motion pictures are valuable because they carry people out of themselves—high above the actualities of life. In some way, not quite clear to her, she knew that tonight she had helped four thousand people to escape the cross realities of their own dreary existence.

The beginning of success and its end. In the midst of it she suddenly felt cold and drew her cloak tightly around her shoulders. Tonight would never come again.

Her lips were dry as dust. Tomorrow her name would be soiled with scandal and next week the newspapers would be printing laudatory photographs of some other new star. This was Hollywood and Leni Luneska was through with it.

But none of this affected the burglarly upstairs where a steady hand lit a fuse that ran to a business-like charge of nitro-glycerine. Three men dressed as ushers flattened themselves out of danger against a wall and waited for the explosion. When it came it was like a muffled cough of a giant, lost in the cyclone of noise that rocked the theater. The whole front of the safe fell forward and struck the floor.

Immediately the men were frantically busy prying open the tin cash boxes.

So completely had the bombardment on the screen disguised the explosion of the safe that even Karl Kruger and Lucky Cavanaugh, separated from the burglary by a single wall, had not heard the safe blowing. This failure on their part, however, might have been attributed to the fact that they were suspended together in that pregnant instant where human life trembles in the cosmic balance.

Karl Kruger had a philosophy but, neurotically, was unable to sustain it against the white fire of his blinding emotions. He raised the revolver in his clutching hand to the level of Lucky Cavanaugh's breast. Neither man breathed.

The difference between them lay in the fact that Lucky Cavanaugh was able to think clearly. Without undue haste, he put a hand behind him. His fingers touched the light switch on the wall and the next instant the room was in darkness. In the same moment of silent suspense, he stepped soft-footedly to one side.

"Where are you?" cried Kruger in a voice so loud and angry that it filled the room with hatred.

The weapon in his hand belched fire and noise. When it had roared six times, Lucky Cavanaugh touched the switch and the room was light again.

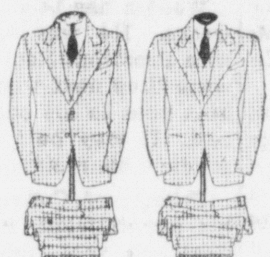

Kruger's face had the look of green mud. The revolver dropped from his hand as a hoarse cry sprang from his throat. Everything before him was a blurred haze. "Let me out of here!" he screamed.

Before Cavanaugh could lay hands on him, the man made a dart, whirled and snatched open the door leading into the room where three men dressed as ushers were stuffing currency into canvas bags. One of them made a swift movement with his right hand—a hand that knew how to handle an automatic. A vicious red tongue leaped from the barrel of the weapon and pointed straight at the breast of Karl Kruger. With a slow, painful movement, Kruger rose to his toes, twisted, and fell backward—dead.

You can't judge a suit of clothes by how it looks in a store window. You ought to know the kind of fabric, the quality of workmanship, and the reputation of the maker—before you know how it is going to serve you.

After all,

THESE are days you want your full money's worth, whether you buy a suit of clothes or a tankful of gasoline.

You somehow expect "shoddy" products from companies which constantly shout extravagant claims which your own intelligence tells you are unwarranted. And you likewise expect honest products from companies which the years have proved to be reliable.

ATLANTIC has made petroleum products of the highest quality for 68 years—and has always merchandised them honestly and sincerely. The NEW ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is without question the finest regular-priced motor fuel we have ever produced.

We believe it will prove thoroughly satisfactory in nearly every automobile; and will effect a very appreciable saving on every filling of your tank. But we are not going to shout meaningless "challenges" at you. All we ask is that you try it—and let your own engine render the verdict.

EDGELEY A. C. MOVES INTO LEAGUE LEAD

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Schedule for Tonight
DAMP WASH at A. O. H.

JEFFERSON vs. ST. ANN'S
(St. Ann's Field)

Edgeley A. C. went into first place in the Bristol Twilight League last night, defeating the Independents, 11-4, on St. Ann's field. The Edgeleyites have a one-half game lead on first place in the league standing.

The Independents started in fine style, nicking "Johnny" Harmsen for four runs in the first inning. But they could not stand prosperity, and after blanking the Edgeley nine for two innings went up in the air to take the facing.

Harmsen had trouble in finding the plate in the initial canto and his passes on top of three hits counted four tallies. However, after that he was invincible. He set down the losers with one hit the remainder of the fray and struck out eleven batters. After the first frame he did not issue a free ticket to first.

"Eddie" Fields was the leader of the Edgeley attack, getting a double and triple, driving in four runs and scoring two. The winners made ten hits.

ARRESTS IN ALCOHOL PROBE

Philadelphia, July 28.—Eight persons were under arrest and three boys were detained at the House of Detention here today in connection with the sale of an alleged poisonous liquor that caused several deaths in West Philadelphia. Six of the 12 deaths resulted from natural causes, autopsies performed at the Coroner's office showed. Milton Woodfolk, 16, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of "suspicion of homicide by distributing poison liquor." He was held without bail along with other suspects as police continued their investigation of the sale and theft of 25 gallons of wood alcohol, which is believed to have been drunk by some of the victims. A sample of the liquor seized in a home, is now being analyzed.

PUNISHMENT FOR KIDNAPER

Kansas City, Mo., July 28.—With Walter H. McGee, the first defendant sentenced to hang for the kidnapping of 25 year old Mary McElroy, the State moved swiftly to bring a similar fate to George McGee, a brother.

Likewise implicated in the ransom abduction of the daughter of City Manager, H. S. McElroy, trial of the second defendant awaited only the selection of a jury. The death penalty will be demanded in the trial of George McGee and a hired man, Clarence Glick, who will be tried later, Prosecutor T. A. J. Mastin said today as witnesses were being summoned.

James B. Keenan, special associate U. S. Attorney General sent here to assist in the prosecution said: "The government will continue to work shoulder to shoulder with the local authorities to halt the wave of kidnapping. I think this is the best way to halt the crime. This verdict of death will serve notice to other kidnapers."

The convicted man maintained a sullen silence after the jury returned the verdict. His face was ashen as he was led away to a cell.

Miss McElroy who was kidnapped from the bath tub in her home here May 28 and held for 30 hours until her family paid a ransom of $30,000, made this comment: "I hope this sentence of death will help to prevent future kidnapping."

BRISTOL SUBURBAN LEAGUE

Newportville, 5; Newport Road, 1
Cubans, 12; White Elephants, 5

The Cubans took undisputed possession of first place in the Bristol Suburban League last night by trimming the White Elephants, 12-5, on the Pine street field. The jump to first place was made by the fact that Newportville defeated the Newport Road Men's Club, 5-1, at Newportville.

"Bill" Beecher's hurling and sticking enabled the Newportville club to chalk up the win and jump into third place. Beecher connected for two doubles and drove in four runs. On the mound he gave the losers but three hits and kept them well scattered.

The Cubans connected for fourteen hits in downing the Elephants. The hits were made from the offerings of "Bill" Murphy. The leaders in the attack were J. Long and A. Spencer, who made three hits each. Every player on the winning club made at least one hit. Williams led the losers by getting three of their six hits.
